With the announced objective of assisting discharged members of Canadian active service forces who have served in the present war to become rehabilitated now and when the war is over, the Great War Veterans' Association was organized on a temporary basis at a meeting in the C.C.F. clubrooms on 102 street Friday night.

About 45 men who have served in the present war or in the last conflict, were present and 20 made application for membership in the organization that is being extended to this city after functioning for more than a year in Calgary and other cities in the southern part of the province.

NAMES CHAIRMAN
James C. MacDonald, who served with the C.A.F., was appointed temporary chairman of the Edmonton branch with A. A. Walker, secretary of the Veterans' Association.

Next meeting of the body was tentatively set for Friday, January 31, at a place and time to be announced later.

Capt. E. W. Bell, of Calgary, who served overseas with the Canadian Armoured Corps, provincial president and president of the Calgary branch No. 1 of the association, outlined to the meeting the aims and objects of the organization. Capt. Bell is accompanied on the tour by W. J. Bell, vice-president and president of the Calgary branch No. 1.

The president said he wished to make clear to all that the 2nd Great War Veterans' Association is not running a rival organization in opposition to the other veterans' associations, such as the Canadian Legion, B.E.L., the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, the Canadian Corps Association and others.

The 2nd Great War vets is being organized simply because there is a demand for such an organization, he contended. Capt. Bell said he has seen that many men who have served in the present war are not in good any of the existing war veterans' associations.

GRAND COUNCIL
He said that in Calgary he had received an invitation to come as a member of the Grand Council. The proposal had been placed before the Calgary membership and rejected, he stated. It had been decided to reject the proposal and organize the new association.

Capt. Bell said he hoped the day would come when a national association, composed of leaders of all active war veterans' organizations would be formed. The 2nd Great War Veterans' Association would be active in the formation of such a consolidation, while retaining the identity of all existing organizations, he stated.

The president said in reply to questions that there are approximately 250 members of the organization in Calgary. There is a branch at Lethbridge and he is open to all.

Membership is open to all men who have served six months in any branch of the Canadian active service forces who have been honorably discharged. The laws are to be changed immediately to respect to qualifications of officers. As it now stands, only men who have served overseas are eligible to hold office. The new constitution is an active thing, the president said.

OTAWA OFFICIALS AGREE WITH VIEW
Veterans of the last Great War are eligible for membership only if they have served in the present war. Membership has been lowered to hold membership in any existing war veterans' associations.

The 2nd Great War Veterans' Association holds a provincial charter and is so far a non-profit organization, the president said.

On the issue of conscription, after comparing and finding wanting Canada's position regarding man-power with New Zealand and the situation in Canada, Mr. Meighen said:

"Can you exaggerate the absurdity of bringing a conscription in train men to serve where the war cannot be won and leaving to wait until the caprice of the potential soldier, the whole duty of service where a conscription must be fought and must be won?"

OPENS CAMPAIGN
The speech was broadcast over a Toronto station (CFRB), was Mr. Meighen's first since he was chosen to be the Conservative Party leader on Nov. 15. At the outset of the address he said: "I am a Conservative Party leader."

OTAWA, Jan. 10.—When 21 members of the Pan-American Union met on January 10 at Rio de Janeiro to discuss economic planning with respect to the war, Canada will not be present. Reports that Canada will be officially represented by Jean Desy, minister to Brazil, in the capacity of an observer are not confirmed here. Undoubtedly Mr. Desy will keep an eye on the conference and do his best to inform Ottawa of what goes on, but he will have no official standing.

It is evident that these developments are causing heartache in Ottawa. The Canadian government has been established with the United States and in view of the economic planning and in endeavoring to mesh our economy with the economy of the United States.

The reborn Chinese air force was thrown into aggressive action for the first time to help the Japanese retreat from Changsha. This is another step in a growing bill of particulars from China indicating that while the Japanese are still in the country, the Chinese are occupying of nearly all the Japanese territory in China.

Farmer Follows Son Into Service

CALGARY, Jan. 10.—(CP)—Happy at farming while his son, Raymond, 17, one of the youngest men in the Canadian active army, is serving overseas, G. W. Archibald, 40-year-old farmer, walked into the Calgary district court on Thursday and volunteered for service.

Although he is 45, Mr. Archibald has 25 years of farming life and is in excellent condition. He has been a member of the Calgary "A" rifle team. He was also in the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Raymond Archibald was only 16 when he joined up last May in the Canadian Armoured Corps, but recruiting officers never suspected it because he had been in the Calgary district court on Thursday and volunteered for service.

City And Country

The creation of an agricultural division of the Chamber of Commerce is a much-belated recognition of the interdependence of the city and the farming community of central and northern Alberta. The city exists because the land round about is occupied by farmers, and the farmers could not exist otherwise, and exists primarily to serve their needs. There are many other contributory factors, but farm trade is the main agent in the making of Edmonton and its main support. Without that trade there would be no reason and no possibility that a city or even a town of any considerable size should be located here.

It is equally true that present-day farming could not be carried on in this area without trading institutions and facilities such as have been established here.

The new branch should be useful in promoting the welfare of the farmers, and the parent organization has been useful in furthering the welfare of the townfolk. It can only do so in proportion to the interest it takes in the organization and direct it along sound lines. It is to be hoped that the new division will be large, that it will include men engaged in all types of farming, and that all parts of this great productive territory will be represented.

Building The "Ceiling"

Canada's Air Force has passed the 100,000 mark, not counting 12,000 civilian employees of the training scheme. At the end of the year there were 21 C.A.F. squadrons overseas, and the immediate objective of 25 squadrons will be reached shortly. Then again the objective will be raised, probably to 40 squadrons in 1943. The figure in view at any time is only a means of marking progress, not a final limit, and the force is to be continuous, and its ultimate strength will depend on the duration of the war and the need of the fleet.

Neither, the Minister emphasized again in a statement at Ottawa, is there any fixed maximum for the number of recruits to be taken on under the Commonwealth Training project from Canada. The number of recruits planned has been completed, these facilities are capable of enlargement and are being enlarged as necessary. The "ceiling" is the limit, and the number of men who may be trained. Figures given two years ago as to the number of the academy in which the schools planned have been completed, these facilities are capable of enlargement and are being enlarged as necessary.

Recent events in the Pacific have shown again the vital need of overhauling air and ground forces in the front. Canada is doing its part to make sure there will be no shortage of properly trained crews.

Not Vital Points

Japanese forces have launched what they intended to be a surprise attack on the British troops near Manila; and what they hope will be a decisive attack on the British troops north of Singapore. In both cases the attack was repulsed by the defenders beyond comparison, and have apparently plenty of reserves if they can find room to employ them.

Washington has not suggested that the Manila outpost is invulnerable, and its capture—after a month of hard fighting—would be no occasion for surprise, nor for enemy boasting. In Manila the battle-line is still far from straight, and the prospect of holding there is better, though the fall of Manila would release more land divisions, warships and airplanes than the loss of Daanbantayan would be. The fact may better be faced that both of these places may be lost. Their assault forces are powerful in men and equipment, and the defenses admittedly inadequate. But the war will not be won or lost in the Dutch East Indies. If the enemy should capture all these remote areas his victory would be only temporary. The lightning there is important mainly because Japanese troops, ships and planes are being debarred, with less severe losses to the Allies.

The war will be won when Japan's military power is so weakened that she happens is not vital. When it happens every foot of territory taken by force will be restored to its owners by the stroke of a pen.

There Were Not Enough Tools

Replying to questions and criticism in the House of Commons, members of Britain's cabinet took full responsibility for the insufficiency of defence forces to meet the emergency in terms in Malaya. Britain could not, Mr. Attlee said, be strong everywhere. Munitions which might have gone to Singapore were sent to Russia and Libya instead. The decision was difficult, but it had to be made, and was made deliberately.

And well made. The smashing attack Russia loosed upon the Nazi forces in November was able to make the Japanese equipment was reaching it from Britain and the United States. Auchinleck could not have broken up Rommel's mechanized army in the desert without planes and tanks and guns in superior numbers. There were not even enough tools to go round, and a Japanese attack on Malaya had to be resisted.

The choice was to arm the Russians and the army of the Nile for these attacks, or to mass equipment in Malaya to ward off an attack which might never come. The decision made involved risk, but the alternative involved a more deadly risk. For if the Russians had not struck when they did the Nazis would have dug in for the winter in sight of Moscow, and it is now known that if Auchinleck had not struck when he did he would have done so in the matter of weeks.

The risk taken in the case of Singapore was also taken in the case of Hong Kong. But there is this important difference. It was believed, and it is believed, that Hong Kong can hold out. It is believed that a city or even a town of any considerable size should be located here.

R.A.F. planes based at Rangoon swooped down on Bangkok on Thursday and set fire to Japanese supply depots there. This is the first British air offensive undertaken in the new war zone. The inference is that enough planes are now arriving on the scene to dispute the air supremacy which the enemy has held up to this time.

An official announcement at London says four out of five planes based in France, and 85 per cent of the trucks manufactured there, go to Germany. Under duress, of course, as far as the French populace are concerned. They must work—or else. But also because the active combatant forces at Vichy, who could make some resistance if they wanted to.

Of the money spent in building operations in the cities and towns of the province for the first eleven months of 1941, more was spent in the construction of houses than in any other category. $3,350,245 out of $8,637,214. The total for this city was nearly one-third of that in 1940. The significant item on this year's program was of course the erection of more than 500 dwelling houses. House-building seems likely to be continued through spring comes, as accommodation is still scarce and the city's land department reports an encouraging sale of residential lots.

Co-Operation After The War

Unit Must Endure After Conflict

If Aggression Is To Be Fully Scotched

By HAROLD L. WEIR

The 1918-19 is beginning to reappear in the diplomatic sphere as with the conspicuous and hastening exception of Russia and Italy. It begins to reappear in the military sphere as with the conspicuous and hastening exception of the Philippines, Malaya and other parts of the Pacific make painful reading for all of us.

But this is a global war and a war which is just getting under way so far as the principal forces of the Axis are concerned.

Outweighing in importance any military developments, accordingly, is the encouragement of unity which has been achieved by the Axis.

The visits of Prime Minister Churchill to the United States and Canada and of British Foreign Secretary Eden to Russia have had important implications for the future under way for some time in Washington, London, Moscow, Chungking and other cities.

Anti-Axis Pact

The most obvious fruit of all this endeavor is the anti-Axis pact signed by the United States, Great Britain, Russia and 23 other nations on January 2nd.

In addition to endorsing the war and peace aims embodied in the Atlantic Charter promulgated by the United States and Britain on August 14, 1941, the 23 associated nations have pledged themselves to prosecute the war against the Axis to the limit of their resources and not to make a separate armistice or peace with the enemy.

Some of the arguments are small and without military strength. Some lack the moral support which is valuable, and useful material support may be forthcoming from the Axis.

The solid core of the anti-Axis coalition is made up of nations with vast resources in manpower, productive equipment, financial wealth and actual or potential military might.

Already these major anti-Axis powers have achieved a far larger degree of unity than was achieved by the Allies at the same stage of the first World War.

It is not too early to say that the co-operation now being forged in the anti-Axis pact will be a more effective one than the co-operation of the Allies in the period after the war has been won.

In Last War

To appreciate the achievements in unification already accomplished, the reader must remember that the United States was at war six months in 1917 before any organized war was set up for co-operation and allocating priorities between the Allies.

Then The Bear Turned

The American armed forces and the Allies.

It took still longer to arrange for the financing of supplies destined for the Allied armies, an arrangement set up many months before the formal entry of the United States into the second world war.

The factories and shipyards of the United States were being diverted from peaceful to military purposes months before war actually broke out between the United States and the Axis.

There has been no year—another gain in training more than a year—another gain in the unpreparedness of 1917. Despite even naval losses of December 7, we entered the war with far greater naval strength than the water and on the ways that we had in 1917.

The heads of the British, American, Russian, Dutch and other armed forces have been conferring for a considerable time. If agreement has not been reached to which nations are to command which sectors of the joint anti-Axis effort, the allied leaders are aware of it.

The first world war had been fought for three and one half years before a supreme war council met for the first time. Dec. 1, 1917, it was not until the middle of 1918 that Foch became commander-in-chief on the western front.

A real unity of strategy on all fronts of the 1914-18 war was never achieved. The achievement of unified strategy and effort on such a far-flung front involving the daily lives of American people is a present war is too great a task to warrant expectation of immediate realization.

Indeed there had been complaints from Australia and the Netherlands Indies concerning the failure of the United States to take steps to a tendency to consider the war in the Pacific as a sideshow.

The Australians and the Dutch have been concerned about the calibre of the leadership entrusted with the defence of their own lands.

The British previously indicated disapproval of the Russians do not take them more fully into their confidence in military matters.

None of these attitudes and difficulties seems insuperable, however, and the progress made toward co-ordination and operation is too great to be lost sight of in a discussion of the problems.

American Life To Change

Industry Today Has No Value Except As It Produces Weapons

By WALTER LIPPMAN

Our ability to carry out the program which the President has outlined depends on the achievement of unified strategy and effort on such a far-flung front involving the daily lives of American people is a present war is too great a task to warrant expectation of immediate realization.

Indeed there had been complaints from Australia and the Netherlands Indies concerning the failure of the United States to take steps to a tendency to consider the war in the Pacific as a sideshow.

The Australians and the Dutch have been concerned about the calibre of the leadership entrusted with the defence of their own lands.

The British previously indicated disapproval of the Russians do not take them more fully into their confidence in military matters.

None of these attitudes and difficulties seems insuperable, however, and the progress made toward co-ordination and operation is too great to be lost sight of in a discussion of the problems.

The first world war had been fought for three and one half years before a supreme war council met for the first time. Dec. 1, 1917, it was not until the middle of 1918 that Foch became commander-in-chief on the western front.

A real unity of strategy on all fronts of the 1914-18 war was never achieved. The achievement of unified strategy and effort on such a far-flung front involving the daily lives of American people is a present war is too great a task to warrant expectation of immediate realization.

Officials See No Dangers

By JACK DEVLIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—In a way, it does seem sort of funny when you stop to think about it.

There you'd be in Times Square, say, in the midst of a blackout and aerial bombardment when all of a sudden you would walk right smack into a lion or a tiger or an elephant, a real live "nuff" one, too, fresh out of a bitknickered zoo.

Well, even if it would make a real yarn to spin, the thought as far as the zoo people around here are concerned, like the Boy Scouts, their motto also is "Be Prepared."

Taking a tip from London's war-experienced zoologists, the animal experts here have turned the Big Bronx Zoo into an armed camp. Similar precautions are being taken at all other zoos in Central Park, Brooklyn and Staten Island.

If a bomb knocks a cage loose, without knowing their inhabitants the guards will fire the city's line of defence and now sem down like a prohibition era gang leader.

At least that's the way officials here see it. The zoo guards are generally so fat a second-

They might be interested, and maybe glad, to know that the petting zoo makes anti-aircrafting any problem at all. Hardly. If they weren't made casualties by a bomb blast, no officials would be encouragingly, they would be immobilized by the cold within a few minutes after they were engulfed under their steam-heated shelters.

ZEBRA ESCAPED

DURING LONDON BOMBING

Technical consultant at the Bronx Zoo Capt. Jean Delacour, a member of the council of the London Zoological Society, Bronx Zoo camp 10 story of land enclosed behind a high fence, and this area, he said, should give the bombed zoo plenty of safety. He is ready to dash around until they are ready to escape. Although the zoo has 2,500 animals, reptiles and birds.

In London a bomb poked a bird house at the zoo and a few ravens soared out and away. Apparently the excitement of the event was too much for them. They all roared back again later.

The zookeepers tried to escape over some fence, they were trapped and down through the blacked out zoo, they were

Some people going on the wagon, and finally were rounded up and released.

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

YESTERDAY we mentioned that patriotic Canadians were weary of this total war by figuratively tossing the kitchen stove or a plow share in the direction of Adolf Hitler and his rapacious retinue. Now Canadians can enjoy a corking good time at the expense of the Axis.

Who would have thought the harmless looking cap on the ornate edge on the top of a soft drink or beer bottle or the cork of a medicine bottle would possess any lethal possibilities?

But the national salvage committee director, William Knighly, has issued a notice to all Canadian citizens that they should be able to remember to keep the cork or cap of the bottle in the case of beer, the number of salvaged caps a fellow citizen has in his pocket after the party should be a pretty accurate indication of his patriotism.

Where proof can be furnished the cork has been in the bottle of fine 100-year-old beverage, the possessor will receive a quality for a war material.

A report out of Ladd's world Berlin states that Hitler is so jittery over the loss of the cork of a medicine bottle that he has ordered a special police force to spy on the citizens.

The Pan Alibi erupted a political ditty a few years ago that addressed a nurse or two in the hospital. The ditty was the carter's daughter while the carter's daughter was taking care of the carter's daughter.

Superstitioned inhabitants of the Third German Reich should be able to put the cork in a good use with a few slight alterations here and there. And Adolf might be well advised to appoint a personal secretary to watch him when he gets a bad attack of intuition.

Our Share Of The Pattern

By Nellie McClung

MOMENTARY flashes of pale winter sunshine brighten the fields today, but the night falls on us as we are in the short days now and the gloom of evening begins at 4 o'clock. The sea rolls off against the rocks, and no more saltwater gleam on the grey waters of the straits. Flecks of white on the shore and all like white stones on the ploughed land, with their backs to the wind. The smoke is going to the ground, and so we say we are going to have more rain.

Now maybe you think this is a dreary picture, but that is only the first glance. The cherry tree, Nellie McClung, which spreads its bare arms over the garage is full of robin and blue flash of the winter's wings has just gone down the lane. There are still roses on the top of the bushes, the evergreen in the garden, and a whole hedge of pale yellow daffodils in the long mound of earth in front of the blackberry bushes. The brown stocks are lined up in the garden, and every time I see them they seem to have more of the winter which will, they say, win the winter. The winter jasmine in the bloom of the daphne is a showing color, although it is not due until February. Primrose in the garden and blue make routes on the rocks, that is, what is left of them, for following the long rain path of the water which has left in again, leaving a gleaming black hole—this is the well which the neighbors tell me was 80 feet deep when it was used for the water supply. It was used up long ago, and yet every winter since then it has suffered this fate. When we put in big rocks and earth and made a rocky overhang, we thought we had satisfied a hunger once and for all, but evidently there is some other power in the content crying out again for more filling.

BURNING CHERRY WOOD

In the fireplace now we are burning cherry-wood—twigs, branches and roots, for several years the trees having run their course, had to be taken out this fall to make room for young trees. It doesn't seem just right to be burning cherry wood, but it does make a good fire. Every time fresh fuel is put on the fire the same thing happens: a sudden crackle and a shower of sparks of fire, it roars up the chimney as if it means to take the house on fire. Then it settles down in a steady pace with soft purring sounds of resignation, but this merely the calm before another storm, when with a sudden "boller" it's off again. Another reservoir of gum has caught fire. Pale yellow flames eddy and swirl and purple line the back of the branches, the red glow of the heart of the tree, and the green of the leaves, and the fire at last, and the cherry trees are left as a pile of ash and a few charred sticks. The fire at last, and the cherry trees are left as a pile of ash and a few charred sticks.

NO SAFE PLACES

We look around this pleasant neighborhood now with a new content of its beauty—now that there is no war. We look at the sound of the tabulation, in the front line here in Victoria, with the possibility of only 15 minutes' warning in the event of a raid. But in places among everyone is in this war. The world is divided into two into those who are all men may be free and those who are slaves. There are places among all men may be free and those who are slaves. There are places among all men may be free and those who are slaves.

We are certainly united now as never before, with all lovers of freedom, and I believe that the world is put out the smouldering embers of hate. When Prime Minister Churchill spoke to the United States Senate and House of Representatives in Washington and the world was united by the French Revolution, and the world was united by the French Revolution, and the world was united by the French Revolution.

WAR CHANGES PEOPLE. We must change or we die, broken-hearted. We must change or we die, broken-hearted. We must change or we die, broken-hearted. We must change or we die, broken-hearted. We must change or we die, broken-hearted.

people to Hitler. He seems to be their deliverer from the wrath of God. If we could only plant a seed of hope in their hearts, we might shorten the struggle. There are commentators who say that the British soldiers, who have been in Italy today, they would be hailed as conquerors by their friends by the disillusioned Italian people who hate their German oppressors. I often wonder if the British people really understand the art of propaganda. It would be better now, but a few months ago it was true that the people in British air raid shelters listened to German music for the reason that the BBC signed off at midnight, allowing the German radio to have full right-of-way. This comment was often heard in the shelters: "The Germans do drop bombs on us, but they certainly send us good music." My authority for this is a paragraph in a speech made in the House of Lords, protesting the British lack of initiative in the great field of defence.

PREJUDICES RUN RIOT

Last week I made a plea for the individual Japanese who should be treated fairly, and I know these sentiments will be challenged. For this is a time of excitement when prejudices run riot. But we must remember we are all human beings. On New Year's Day we confused our sins and asked God to guide us. If we are to merit that forgiveness we must not have hate centres in our hearts.

The germ centres of hatred and revenge," said Winston Churchill, "must be constantly and vigilantly treated and controlled at their very beginnings." I think of Kagawa in Japan and the many Christian people here who look to us for fair play and understanding. I know we must be on our guard, but I have entire confidence in the Japanese people, and I am sure that they will be guided by the same high standards of justice and fairness.

Husky Fare Feeds Outdoor Appetites

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

James Beard is master of cooking for crowds who eat out of doors. He is a superbly enthusiastic—and listen to his enthusiasm.

"Just let me see your appetite book and I'll be the spot," he says, then gives this recipe for a crowd.

SPARKER VISTA

Number One Recipe: For the best barbecue one person and leave them whole. Soak for several hours in your favorite barbecue sauce and then broil over a charcoal fire over a low fire. Ten minutes before broiling, brush with honey barbecue sauce, sprinkle with a little thyme and brush with honey.

Two pounds of sausage cooked in an iron skillet with 1 pound butter and 1 large onion chopped coarsely. Boil for 10 minutes, adding a little liquid if it gets too dry. The refuse should be covered.

ENGLISH APPLE SAUCE

One cup apple sauce and 1 cup grated horseradish mixed together thoroughly and served with any pork dish.

Place Number Two: Have spareribs cut in convenient finger pieces and broil with water in the pan for four or until very tender. Add few sprigs of thyme to boiling water. Drain and serve with the sauce.

Just as you are ready for dinner, scatter the spareribs in plenty of butter. Let them brown nicely and are crisp. Season with salt, pepper and paprika.

Serve with a dash of lentils. Cook for several hours until tender. Fry 1/4 pound bacon cut in small pieces in a cup of grease and drain in small bits, and a little chopped onion, and mix well.

Monday's Menu

Breakfast: Grapefruit Juice.

Your Baby And Mine

One of the familiar complaints among mothers is that their children are so limited in their tastes. Satisfy them with milk and peas, and refuse any other variety of vegetable with a firm "I don't like it!" though the child may never have tried one spoonful.

A mother is confounded about the proper course to take in such a situation. The direct answer is simple: she knows the child will never like what she never has tried one spoonful.

Yet, for the child's own sake, she will be eager to increase his tastes so that he will not grow up to be that most aggravating of individuals—the person who likes few foods.

The small baby who is treated to a different vegetable each day is bound to acquire a liking for many of them. Despite this training every mother discovers that the child will not eat the vegetables she offers.

Gradually most babies will concentrate on a few they like better than others. This is the result of such trial, don't be too upset about it. All vegetables contain the same type of nourishment and as children grow they will become more and more interested in new ones.

Of course, there are tasteful ways to increase the interest. To see the whole family carousing about a new "dick" and eating it up is a sure way to influence upon the child. He'll be eager, too, to see his mother eat it. The food served can become a family pattern which the child readily imitates.

Belter than trying to wheedle the child into eating new foods is the use of suggestion only in an experimental bit. "I won't ask you to eat more but just taste it. I think you'll like it."

Sometimes, with babies a new vegetable is introduced gradually and gradually increased until the new taste overpowers the old. When the baby is eating carrots when he thought he was eating popcorn, he will be eating popcorn.

Let us all be a little stifle any temptation to bewail that a child simply won't eat peas. Let us be content to let the child eat what he likes and let the rest go.

Our last, increasing Consumption of Milk, which baby can take milk will "go off" it temporarily. The mother who wants to see her child eat what he likes, let him eat what he likes.

LUNCHEON: Black bean soup with bacon, rice, bread, fruit cup, gingerbread, milk.

DINNER: Barbecued spareribs, lentils, old English apple sauce, nut cookies, milk.

GOOD BUSINESS BEGINS AT HOME

MORE THAN EVER...

Now that the holiday season is a mellowing memory there is even greater need to demand Alberta Trade - Marked Goods in our buying. More than ever we need the advantages which are involved in doing so.

Let's explain what we mean.

Those who know such things tell us the peak of holiday spending is followed by a very slack season. As a result employees are laid off and production is cut. And it hurts not them alone but everybody else.

That's what we all want to avoid.

You see, there are many staple commodities we buy year in and year out. Year in and out we can keep the Alberta manufacturers of Trade - Marked Goods busy. For it is largely staple things they supply.

It depends on you. If you accept products for which your money goes out of the Province, then Alberta manufacturing is going to slow down. But on the other hand, if you insist on Alberta Trade-Marked Goods when you place your orders, your purchasing power will remain in Alberta and any tendency to slacken off will apply primarily to other goods.

Mind you, we oppose trying to make Alberta a self-contained unit. But good business begins at home. And if trading activity must slow down, the local manufacturer such as you see advertised on this page must feel least.

Another thing. Now, more than ever before, you want to get the most for your spending. To do so, try using Treasury Transfers Vouchers. It means a 5 per cent consumer bonus on the price of all Alberta Trade-Marked Goods you purchase in this way.

You'll Get The Value ... And The Bonus

Introducing

Northern Alberta Dairy Pool Limited

Back in 1931 they were organized a dairy with an ideal that was to provide the farmers of Northern Alberta with a chance to make their own butter and market it themselves. In this way the profits which ordinarily go to the creamery would be returned to the farmers in cash or as shares in the organization.

The Northern Alberta Dairy Pool Limited is the result. Beginning with a co-operative organization of 100 farmers in the first year, the N.A.D.P. now has 10,000 members, the first unit of their modern dairy. These members, at the present time, they have branches at Stettin, Red Deer, Lethbridge, Calgary, and Edmonton.

With more than 100,000 producers who actually own and control the organization, the N.A.D.P. is located at 1000 10th Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta. It is the largest dairy in the world.

That is what the N.A.D.P. is all about. But an ideal alone does not ensure the success of such a venture. It depends upon the quality of products and the service offered to the consumer. In both these particulars the N.A.D.P. stands pre-eminent. Their milk, cream and butter are of the highest quality. Their butter is made in the creamery and is of the highest quality. Their butter is made in the creamery and is of the highest quality.

You can't go wrong on any N.A.D.P. product. They're all right.

Pringle Electric Hatcheries

Back in 1929, Alberta farmers depended on the "hit and miss" system of having baby chicks sent over from the States. These methods served the purpose but they presented many disadvantages.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Pringle, who had been actively interested in poultry for many years, decided to venture into this line with a hatchery in the province of Alberta. They had a large flock of chickens and they had a large flock of chickens and they had a large flock of chickens.

With this venture successful in 11 years of careful hatchery management, PRINGLE ELECTRIC HATCHERIES have increased their capacity from 50,000 eggs to 100,000 eggs a year. They have a large flock of chickens and they have a large flock of chickens.

After 11 years selection of breeding flocks operating under Provincial Government Hatchery approval, they are able to turn out chicks which are proving true money-makers.

Their Alberta plant is located at 250-260 10th Ave. East in Calgary, and 1907 10th St. Edmonton, are equipped to serve the entire province. They have a large flock of chickens and they have a large flock of chickens.

Many farmers can endorse their slogan: "Pringle Chicks for Profit!"

First Of C.W.A.A.F. To Be Assigned Regular Duties Seen At Ottawa

Serving in Canadian Women's Army Corps, but on duty in U.S. at the moment, (this smiling trio arrives in Washington to work with Canadian attaché.

The first group to be assigned to regular service after completing an extensive training course, 100 members of the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force are now on duty at Uplands air station, Ottawa. Their duties range all the way from welding to cooking. Airwoman Stella McKee of Edmonton, centre, tastes soup the boys of the air station will have for supper, while LAC. Levitt draws stores from workshop storeroom, left, from Airwoman R. M. Van Allen. Four airwomen are employed in the logbook control room. They keep records of the work and serviceability of all aircraft at the station and allocate repair work. Airwoman M. G. St. Louis, of Cornwall, is shown, right, working in the log room. Most of 100 members on duty at the Ottawa station received their training at Haverhill College, Toronto.

Axis "Invades" Cairo

This is an Axis invasion, but the kind Hitler doesn't like to talk about. Swarm of German and Italian prisoners are herded through street of Cairo on arrival from Libya, where they were taken prisoners by British forces.

South Africans Smash Nazi Tanks In Libya

Vehicles and mechanized transport vehicles, some ablaze, are pictured after their capture by South African troops who blew up both tanks and workshops. The tank at the left still bears the enemy insignia. This was part of the victory against the Axis in the western desert.

U-Boat Kayoed After Sinking Ship

Five Million Babies Set New Birth Record In States

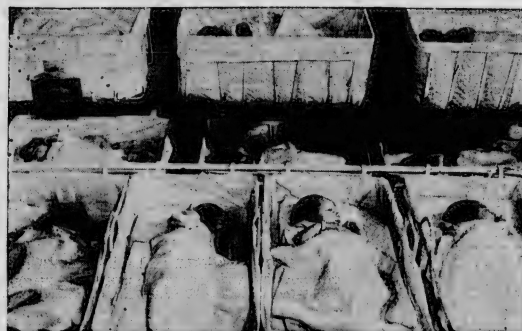

The clerk these days is a busy bird. The U.S. marriage rate has increased by leaps and bounds as is usual in wartime, and there are five million babies in that country, an all-time high even for an era of conflict. The strain placed upon industry to supply and equip an army of a million or two million men is dwarfed into insignificance, by comparison, with the effort necessary to supply the needs for these little innocents. Not to mention things medical, there are carriages, cribs, diapers, talcum, baby foods, pacifiers, scales and clothes to be turned out in vast numbers by already hard-pressed manufacturers. But still the stark files on both in Canada and the States, with many more stopping places on his list, threatening to send the new arrival mark far and above the already staggering record.

Macleod Named Liberal Chief At City Meet

Dunn moved the vote of confidence to Mrs. Driscoll and family and it was passed in the form of a motion of condolence. Mr. Dunn referred to the late Mr. Driscoll as a staunch Liberal of many years' prominence prior to his illness last year.

Guests of honor seated on the platform were Mrs. C. A. Chalmers, M.P., Edmonton; Mrs. H. J. Macleod, K.C., M.L.A.; Mrs. J. A. Clarke, president of the Alberta Women's Liberal Association; Mrs. J. B. Stewart, president of Edmonton Provincial Women's Liberal Association; Mrs. Paul Bevan, president of the Twentieth Century Club; Bruce Whitaker, representing the West Edmonton Liberal Association; and T. P. O'Connor, president of the East Edmonton Federal Liberal Association.

J. Boyd McBride was chairman of the meeting and Mr. O'Connor was secretary. Mr. Dunn, treasurer, also occupied the platform. Annual reports were given by the three mentioned above in their respective capacities as president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

HIGHLIGHTS OF YEAR

Both Mr. McBride and Mr. Grant referred to the participation of delegates from the various Liberal associations in the annual convention of the Alberta Liberal Association held in Calgary on September 25. Mr. Grant highlighted the year's activities both in the province and in the city of opinion brought from the convention was definitely for a strain by all delegates present, especially in provincial politics on the Alberta Liberal ticket.

REVIEW OF LIBERALISM

The communication of our executive with Mr. Montgomery since his visit here in December was that there has been a marked revival of Liberalism in Southern Alberta, and the meetings Mr. Montgomery has held in Central Alberta are meeting with the same response. The next annual convention has been called for Edmonton in June, and the main item of business will be the election of a provincial leader to replace E. L. Gray, who resigned.

ACTION COMMENDED

The suggestion came forward from the executive that the program of the year should be to increase in the amount of funds in the treasury at the end of the year. After considerable discussion on the advisability of shifting the date of the annual meeting from June to a time when it would not interfere with the association's winter activities, James Morrison moved a motion of confidence in the executive brought up at the next general meeting.

A MOTION OF CONFIDENCE

A motion of confidence in the executive was carried by a large majority. Mr. Macleod, who was elected to the chair, at the close of the meeting, did not call upon Hugh Macleod, K.C., M.L.A., to address the meeting.

ANOTHER MOTION COMMENDING

the action of Hugh Macleod and J. H. Bowen, M.L.A., Calgary, for the year ended at the Calgary convention in favor of strong Liberalism and the fact that they had been unanimously approved. (It had been announced at a previous meeting that Mr. Macleod and Mr. Bowen had declared that if the Independent Liberal Association formed a new political party in the province, they would ask Mr. Speaker to move them from the legislature, from their present positions among the Independents, to new locations.)

VIEW EXPRESSED

Prior to the vote by ballot for the president each candidate was allowed two minutes on the platform. Mr. McBride expressed his view that he had already expressed his views in the report of the acting president and Mr. Macleod merely thanked the meeting for honoring him with the nomination, and that he would be glad to assume the responsibilities that go with the position.

FOLLOWING ARE THE REMARKS

expressed by Mr. Kerr, acting president, Mr. McBride, as secretary, Dr. G. C. Hope, as secretary, Dr. G. C. Hope, as secretary, Mr. Macleod.

STAY AS UNIT

K. C. S. KERR, K.C.: This is the first meeting of Liberalism held in a good long time. It is gratifying to see such a large turnout of delegates and of young people. My conclusion is that we should strive to give the people in peace, the same care and attention that we give the army in time of war.

I HAVE ALWAYS BELIEVED IN THE

progress and have at times believed that Liberalism is the right vehicle to move in order to get the required progress. Liberalism should stay as a unit. It should cooperate as a unit. It should be the most important of all. It should win as a unit.

NEL D. MACLEOD, M.L.A. (after his election to office): All I wish to state is that I am highly honored and that I will do my best.

DR. G. C. HOPE (while nominating Mr. Kerr candidate for president): There has been much criticism of the two-party system of government. Only recently Mr. Abernethy stated that "the old game of party politics is dead, and the new game of democracy is being played in the name of the people."

IN REVIEWING HISTORY IN CANADA

and other world democracies we find that most successful nations have been accomplished through the two-party system of politics prevailing.

CHARLES H. GRANT, K.C. (secretary's report): First activities of the association, last year centered around the by-election in which we were successful in electing Mrs. Caswell, in the Ottawa house, in place of her husband, who passed away suddenly.

Early in the fall, the executive

met, selected delegates to attend

On December 22, the executive called a mass meeting which heard the report of the delegates. Qualification was expressed by all the delegates of the general unanimity of opinion in regard to the stand the Liberal party should take in Alberta.

J. BOYD MCBRIDE, K.C.: Without a doubt, the highlight of the year's activities was the attendance of delegates at this association at the Calgary meeting last September. The meeting was called under the auspices of the Alberta Liberal Association, which is an amalgamation of the provincial and federal associations. The meeting was attended by 80 to 100 Liberals from all parts of the province.

Outstanding and a gratifying feature of the conference was the complete unanimity of opinion expressed by all delegates in regard to the desire for a strong Liberal party in Alberta. We are completely through and finished with the further co-operation with "Independent Liberalism" (a term used by the speaker, who was one of the delegates) or whatever else one wishes to call it.

Mr. McBride also mentioned the visit of Mr. Montgomery, a man who had spent his whole life as a good Liberal, and who was now a member of the Alberta Liberal Association. Mr. Montgomery, who was a member of the Alberta Liberal Association, was a member of the Alberta Liberal Association.

J. BOYD MCBRIDE, K.C.: Without a doubt, the highlight of the year's activities was the attendance of delegates at this association at the Calgary meeting last September. The meeting was called under the auspices of the Alberta Liberal Association, which is an amalgamation of the provincial and federal associations. The meeting was attended by 80 to 100 Liberals from all parts of the province.

Outstanding and a gratifying feature of the conference was the complete unanimity of opinion expressed by all delegates in regard to the desire for a strong Liberal party in Alberta. We are completely through and finished with the further co-operation with "Independent Liberalism" (a term used by the speaker, who was one of the delegates) or whatever else one wishes to call it.

WELL-KNOWN IN EDMONTON

Mr. Montgomery, a man who had spent his whole life as a good Liberal, and who was now a member of the Alberta Liberal Association, was a member of the Alberta Liberal Association.

SAVING LOS LANE, ALBERT REYNOLDS AND NANCY TALBOT
FROM DEATH, THE MAN OF STEEL TORN THIS ACHIEVEMENT
BY RESCUING ANOTHER MORGAN FROM MACHINE-GUN
BULLETS SHORTLY AFTER, WHEN MORGAN WOUNDS THE MACHINE GUNNER, SUPERMAN CARRIES THE TRUCK TO THE POLICE HOSPITAL, THEN RACES BACK TOWARD THE PEERLESS TRUCKING LINE WAREHOUSE.

MEANWHILE—DISCOVERING HIS BUSINESS RIVAL,
GRANT ASTINE, LURKING OUTSIDE THE WAREHOUSE,
MORGAN FORCES HIM IN AT THE FRONT OF A SUN.

HOW TO SEE TO
IT THAT THE SUN REACHES ITS DESTINATION

I CAUGHT ASTINE
SHOOTING OUTSIDE—
HE'S STAYING RIGHT
HERE UNTIL WE GET
WORD OUR TRUCKS
TO LOWER
HOPEFULLY UNARMED THAT SUN!

MAH! JUST
BE FINISHING
BY! TELL HIM
TO LOWER

AS THE MAN OF TOMORROW HUSTLES OVER
THE TRUCKING COMPANY'S WAREHOUSE HE MAKES USE OF HIS X-RAY VISION!!!

SO MORGAN
MEANS TO KEEP HIS EYES ON ASTINE I NOT A BAD IDEA!

THEN ON HE STREAKS AGAIN... COVERING MILES
IN MOMENTS...

THERE IT IS—
THE LONG LINE
OF PEERLESS
TRUCKS—ON A MOUNTAIN ROAD.

DOWN, SUPERMAN MAKES USE OF HIS TELE-SCOPIC X-RAY VISION. BUT AS HE EXAMINES THE INTERIOR OF THE TRUCKS, HE MAKES AN UNEX-PECTED DISCOVERY IN ONE OF THEM—
DYNAMITE!!!

IT TAKES BUT AN INSTANT FOR THE MAN OF STEEL
TO SWOOP INTO THE TRUCKS AND INSTANTANEOUSLY PULL OUT ITS OCCUPANTS...

HEY,
IS THIS??

HEY,
IS THIS??

HEH-2

DELIBERATELY, SUPERMAN MAKES THE STRENGTH-ENING WHIRL, SO THAT THE HEAVY TRUCK IS SENT PLUM-ING OFF THE ROAD INTO EMPTY SPACE...

SECOND-
TO GO...

DOWN HUSTLES THE TRUCK TOWARD THE DISTANT GROUND...

OUT BEFORE IT CAN SMASH TO EARTH THERE IS A DEBASTATING EXPLOSION—A GREAT SLUG OF THE MOUNTAIN'S SOIL IS TORN FREE...

THIS
